Funeral for a Gangster

By Eileen Moushey is produced by special arrangement with Mysteries by Moushey

Go back in time to 1928 and join the Mob sendoff for the late Vito "The Gut" Marzetti at a speakeasy, "Ruby's Place," where the grieving family is holding "services". Who killed Vito and where did he hide the cash? His adult children, his young, recently wed widow, and the FBI all want to know.

Eat, Drink, and Be Murdered

Produced by special arrangement with Tonymou Productions, Blooming Grove, PA.

An 80th birthday party, where the Flanagans and the O'Rileys have congregated to honor the family matriarch, Grandma Rose. Trouble is, the two clans have hated each other for decades. The hatred escalated when Rose, an O'Riley, married Finian Flanagan and gave him the O'Riley's secret whiskey recipe. Now the Flanagans are filthy rich and the O'Rileys are forced to work for them at the Wild Irish Rose Distillery. The cunning Grandma Rose kept one whiskey ingredient secret all these years. Will Grandma Rose divulge the secret ingredient? And if so, to which family?

Death Near Dead Man's Holler

By Lee Mueller © 2012

Nothing much ever happens in the small town of Meridosa till now. Gun-slinger Sergio Van Cleef is in town for safe keeping in the jail. Mrs. Peacock, president of the Ladies Ethics Guild is none too happy about the arrangement, nor is she happy that the new Saloon "entertainer", Sadie Mae Harlow has not been run out of town. All Sheriff John Ford needs to do is keep an eye on him. Simple right? Well, no Van Cleef winds up dead.
